

Listing of Web Sites to African American Culture

For web site addresses, see printed version for following listings:

The New York Public Library

Photographs and archives of the African American experience are contained here.

Africana

This site is called the gateway to the Black world. It provides news, cultural information, fun activities, a chat room, and links to many other topics.

Library of Congress

The Library of Congress' African American Odyssey exhibition. This site offers historical information about African Americans through on-line audio and video presentations.

Black Facts

This site allows one to search for African American history facts by date.

PBS

PBS allows you to search for information by category or you can look up a particular person.

Encyclopedia Britannica

The Encyclopedia Britannica's guide to African American history is provided here.

Black Quest

This is a web page that links you to many African American cultural, and Historical sites.

U.S. House of Representatives

You will find the United States Constitution on this site.

Western Michigan University

Here you'll find a Civil Rights timeline, featuring photographs and explanations of each event.

Black Caucus

The official site of the Black Caucus of the American Library Association listing news, publications, a history of the association, and its activities.

Indiana University

The Archives of African American Music and Culture site has established a collection of source materials for research and instruction.

NAACP

This is the official web site of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

African American History Through the Arts-Coral Gables High School

This site includes traditional to twentieth century African American History portrayed through art.

American Memory Library of Congress

This site features an African American history/ culture list with letters and drafts from Thurgood Marshall, Fredrick Douglass, and Dr. Martin Luther King, to name a few.

Rockingham High School Celebration of Black History

An African American history celebration

Indiana University Bloomington Library

The African American Cultural Center Library features cultural information, collections, and African American news articles.

Hartford Public Library

This site provides many hyper-links to other cultural sites with topics such as science, women, and population etc.